ARTOGRAPHY

The Federation of Nigeria, an independent sovereign state from today, with a population of over 35 million offers the largest expanding market in Africa and readily welcomes industrial and commercial enterprises which are willing to enter into partnership for the continued development of the country. Nigeria is a stable, progressive country with an enterprising, vigorous people and offers ample labour resources ● adequate fuel, power and all forms of transportation ● industrial sites at major towns and within easy reach of essential facilities ● flexible immigration regulations covering top management and technical posts ● incentive legislation for industry in certain cases ● and Government schemes to stimulate local production. Nigeria is the world's largest exporter of palm produce and of groundnuts; an important producer of cocoa; and has large exports of cotton, rubber, timber, hides, skins, tin and columbite. Substantial amounts of mineral oil are already being exported and within the next decade Nigeria may well become the largest oil producer in the Commonwealth. Other resources include coal, iron-ore, limestone and many other minerals in commercial quantities.
